

GLOBAL SEAFOOD

The world now produces more than 155 million tonnes of seafood each year.

Increasing pressures on fish populations mean one-third of global fish stocks are over-exploited – this has increased from 10% in the 1970s.